1. Introduction

- 1.1 The SUN Movement has committed itself to the development of a comprehensive Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) Framework to provide a sound and practical basis for measuring the progress and effectiveness of the Movement as a whole.
- 1.2 The first complete version of this M&E Framework is reflected in this document and consists of three complementary components (see Figure 1.1 below). The document was developed in consultation with SUN Networks. A Reference Group, consisting of representatives of all Networks, and Lead Group were constituted to support this work. A two-day design workshop was held in Geneva on 07 & 08 March 2013. The M&E Framework brings together, in one document, the expected results of the Movement and stakeholder commitments as outlined in the SUN Movement Strategy and Roadmap and in individual Network planning documents.

- 1.3 The SUN Movement Monitoring and Evaluation Framework is presented as three linked parts, each with a distinct purpose. The methods used in each part are described in chapters two, three and four of this document; in each case they are tailored to reflect the purpose they seek to pursue:
- Monitoring the impact of efforts to Scale Up Nutrition within SUN countries: Impact is assessed by documenting the changes in the nutritional status of women and children, and linking these changes to actions undertaken within SUN countries. Impact assessment is undertaken within SUN countries using standardized survey procedures (Demographic and Health Surveys, for example) and computing the average annual rate of reduction for selected variables – such as prevalence of chronic malnutrition in children under five years of age. In March 2013 the SUN Movement's Donor Network proposed expanding impact monitoring through the creation of a Networked Information System that brings together and enriches existing survey procedures to make a more robust assessment. Chapter 2 summarises this part of the SUN Movement's M&E framework and indicates the proposed principles of the Networked Information System.

- b. Monitoring the outcomes of efforts to Scale Up Nutrition as practiced by different stakeholders within the SUN Movement: This part of the M&E Framework – including a description of how the contribution of these stakeholders is measured and reported – is presented in Chapter 3. It forms the core of this document. A distinction is made between outcomes delivered by stakeholders at country level (governments of SUN countries and other in-country stakeholders – blue actors in figure 1.1) and outcomes that cover groups of countries delivered by global stakeholders (the collective of SUN countries, SUN networks and the SUN Movement Lead Group – orange actors).
- c. Monitoring the services (outputs) provided by the SUN Movement Secretariat (SMS) and assessing their contribution to the SUN Movement: This takes account of commitments made by the SMS to monitor and report on the contribution of its services to the ways different parts of the SUN Movement function. It draws on existing logical frameworks for the monitoring of the SMS. Chapter 4 contains this part of the Framework.

2. Intended use of the M&E Framework

2.1 The M&E Framework provides a framework for the collection of data with a view to determine impact, outcomes and outputs of the SUN Movement through the actions of its constituent parts.

- In measuring impact, the M&E Framework assumes the use of secondary data that will be collected at country level and collated by the SMS.
- In measuring outcome, the SMS, Government Focal Points and the Network Facilitators will take the lead in collecting and reporting data related to their contribution to the SUN Movement, including an explanation / contextualisation of progress made. Other members of the Movement may be asked to provide inputs to increase the quality and efficiency of data collection, but final responsibility for adequate and timely reporting lies with them (more details are provided in the monitoring plan in annex 1).

2.2 At output level, it is expected that the SMS will collect and report on relevant data.

2.3 The M&E Framework is a living document, which aims to help map and understand the Movement's progress in its implementation of the SUN Movement Strategy. The successful use of the Framework will be dependent on all SUN stakeholders, particularly the SUN Network and SMS, ensuring that the necessary information on the parts of the Framework directly relevant to them is collected and reported upon in a timely manner. It is suggested that each year a space is created to discuss the need for adaptation to all three components of M&E Framework, without losing sight of its overall purpose of mutual accountability.

2.4 Movement-wide monitoring information will be collated and reported upon annually by the SMS along with an analysis of progress made across the Movement. Based on this, the SMS may formulate recommendations or highlight strategic choices to be made by the Lead Group and the different members of the Movement, including revisions to the M&E Framework itself. These inputs are expected to enrich the members' own assessments of the monitoring findings.

3. M&E Framework at Impact Level

- 3.1 Impact monitoring primarily serves the purpose of learning and steering. Gaining an insight into changes in the nutritional status of women and children in SUN member countries is crucial to determine how well interventions work under which circumstances. This in turn is expected to inform decision-making in SUN countries, in particular in relation to priority-setting and work methods in the future.
- 3.2 As mentioned above, impact monitoring relies entirely on secondary data; therefore the underlying methodology for collecting this data will not be elaborated upon here.
- 3.3 The impact of the SUN Movement will be reflected in the extent to which SUN countries demonstrate significant reductions in undernutrition, referenced by the global targets established by the 2012 World Health Assembly:
- 40% reduction of the global number of children under five who are stunted;
 - Reducing and maintaining child wasting to less than 5%;
 - 30% reduction of low birth weight;
 - No increase of child overweight;
 - 50% reduction of anaemia in women of reproductive age;
 - Increase exclusive breastfeeding rates in the first six months of life up to at least 50%.
- 3.4 In addition to global nutrition-related targets, SUN countries have established national nutrition goals that address direct and underlying causes of undernutrition, such as increased access to affordable nutritious food, clean water, sanitation, healthcare and social protection.
- 3.5 Based on existing well-accepted secondary data sources (see the list below), the SMS tracks the data that indicate progress made towards meeting both global nutrition targets and country-specific nutrition goals. SMS makes this data comparative across countries and available for SUN members annually, as part of a common M&E / Progress report. This is done to enable the SUN Movement to link information on the nutrition situation in countries to progressive changes in behaviour of countries and networks, and to be in a better position to establish priority actions and determine where significant increases in investment are needed.
- 3.6 The SUN Movement annually makes available comparative data¹ across SUN countries on the following indicators of nutrition:

In line with the WHA global nutrition targets	Nutrition-specific	Nutrition-sensitive
U5 Stunting	4+ food groups (6-23)	Access improved water (% pop)
U5 Wasting	Children 3 IYCF (6-23)	Access improved sanitation (% pop)
U5 Over Weight	Zinc treatment

¹ With break down of urban/rural, age and income groups, among others

Low-birth weight 0-6 months Exclusive Breastfeeding	4+ ANC for pregnant women De-worming (12-59) Vitamin A (6-59) Presence of iodized salt in household	Access to primary school enrolment Un-met need for family planning % Births attended by skilled health personnel Nutrition awareness- building by improving mass media coverage in collaboration with private sector

3.7 These indicators form a core, but not exhaustive, list of changes that the SUN Movement will track on an annual basis. Additional indicators, specific to business or particular sectors, will be added on an as-needed basis and tracked, assuring that the technical quality of data is acceptable.

3.8 Information from WHO is considered as the primary data source. In addition, when available and up-to-date, data is sourced from Multiple Indicators Cluster Surveys (MICS) and/or Demographic Health Surveys (DHS) reports.

3.9 If the latter is not available or out-of-date, SMART survey data and other validated national survey (only when it meets certain technical criteria) are used, like:

- National Family Health Surveys
- National Maternal-Infant Health Surveys (ENSMI)
- Nutrition and food security survey

In addition, for data on nutrition-specific and -sensitive indicators:

- FAO Strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and constraints/threats (SWOC)
- Database of Joint Monitoring Programme for Water Supply and Sanitation (JMP)
- The State of the World's Midwifery Report (SOWMR)

3.10 Similar to impact indicators, reliable data sources will be added, as needed, to satisfy requests of SUN member countries and networks in tracking the sector-specific changes on impact level.

4. M&E Framework at Outcome Level

- 4.1 Outcome monitoring primarily serves the purpose of mutual accountability among the various stakeholders within the SUN Movement by creating an insight into the contributions of the different groups of stakeholders. This mutual accountability, in turn, serves as a basis for steering of the Movement by the Lead Group (LG) and is considered to be an essential element for the sustainability of the Movement.
- 4.2 For the design of the outcome monitoring system, an Outcome Mapping methodology has been employed, structured around the four processes (in pursuit of four strategic objectives) as reflected in the SUN Movement Strategy 2012 - 2015. The Outcome Mapping approach looks at how the behaviour of actors at country level (i.e. government and country networks) is changing within the context of the four processes using “ladders of change”. These ladders are made up of a set of progress markers that illustrate progressive behaviour that is expected to be displayed by the various actors (see chapter 4.1). The M&E system does not directly measure progress in processes, but progress in the behaviour of actors that make the four processes happen thereby enabling mutual accountability in terms of behaviour.
- 4.3 These four processes at country level are supported by the SUN Global Networks (Donor, UN, CSO and Business Networks). The outcome M&E Framework also includes sets of progress markers that are meant to help the mapping out of the behaviour and contribution of these global actors to the SUN Movement (see sections 4.5 and 4.6).
- 4.4 This combined outcome monitoring of global and country actors is illustrated in the figure 4.1 below:

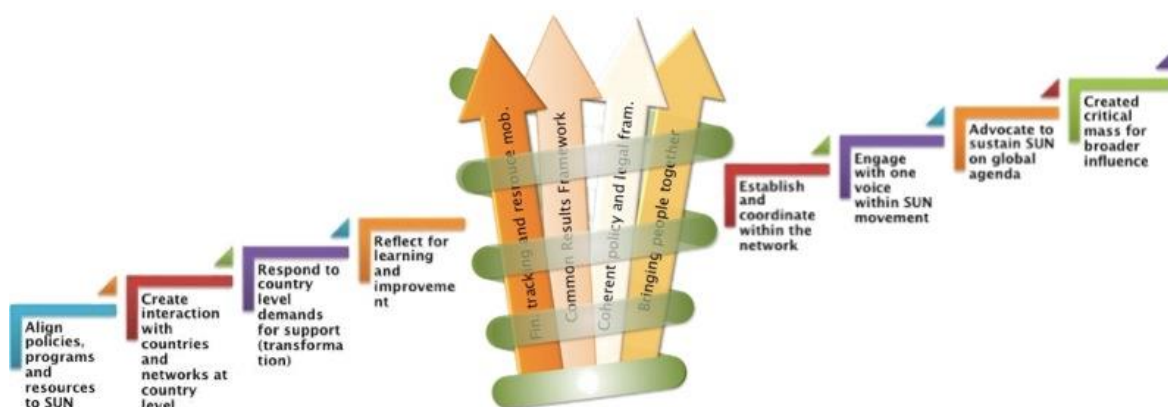

Figure 4.1: Four country processes supported by global networks

4.5 Network Outcomes at country level

4.5.1 At country level, behaviour during a period of time will be measured against a “ladder of change” for each of the four strategic processes of the SUN Movement as reflected in picture 4.2 below.

4.5.2 Each of the four ladders is made up of a number of steps or phases that mark progressive behaviour displayed by the various actors involved (i.e. progress markers). Even though the steps of the ladder suggest a linear process, it is understood that progress in reality cannot be expected to follow these steps consecutively. The steps merely provide a framework around which actual changes in behaviour can be mapped in whatever way they evolve. This also means that the framework is not normative and being on a higher level is not automatically better than being on a lower level.

4.5.3 Repeating this mapping of behaviour over a longer period of time gives an insight into patterns of behaviour of individual actors. This insight is not designed to be judgemental, but to enable decision making by the Lead Group as well as by the individual actors about what to do next to help the SUN

Movement as a whole progress towards delivery of the SUN Movement Strategy.

4.5.4 Furthermore, under each step more details are given (in the shape of milestones or indicators) reflecting possible signs that illustrate a particular level of behaviour. These signs are just examples to help recognise a certain level of behaviour, as it is understood that particular behaviour may manifest itself in a different, unforeseen, way².

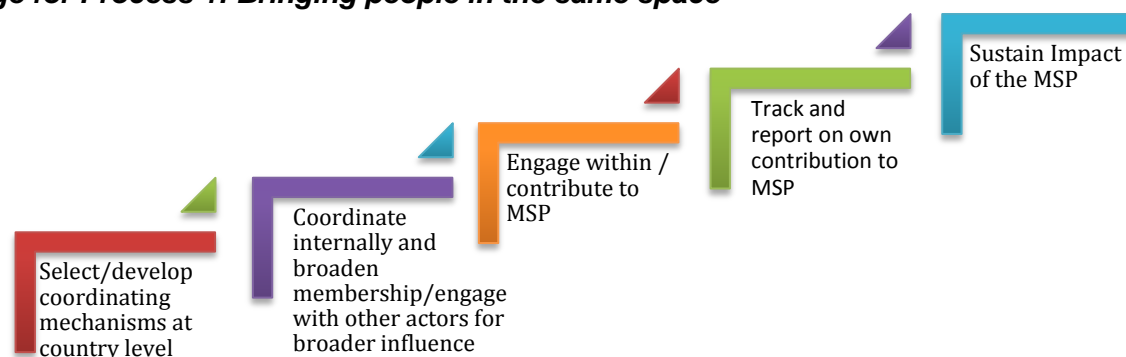

4.5.5 On the next pages, the “ladders of change” for each of the four processes as well as the signs for the different actors are illustrated.

4.5.6 The SUN Business Network (SBN) functions slightly differently from the other three SUN Networks as the role of the private sector differs from the traditional mandate of governments, multilateral agencies and civil society to improve health and nutrition. However, the SBN facilitates multi-stakeholder collaboration and private sector engagement in an increasing number of SUN countries through local SBN ‘chapters,’ and therefore will track and report on progress at a country level only in those countries where a local SBN chapter is active.

4.5.7 It should be noted that not all the steps of ladders are fully applicable or appropriate for each Network and country government. These exceptions are captured and visibly displayed in tables with progress markers and signs.

² E.g. Sharing of information is behaviour that can be displayed in regular exchange meetings but also by posting information on a website or in many other ways. Measuring the number of meetings as indicator for information sharing therefore risks leading to the wrong conclusions. So we are not looking for preconceived indicators, but for actual signs that illustrate the manifestation of a particular behaviour.

- 4.5.8 A monitoring plan detailing, per monitoring area, how the system will be operated is attached in Annex 1.

4.6 Network Outcomes at global level;

- 4.6.1 The main purpose of the Networks at global level (CSOs, Donors, UN and Business) is to enable and support SUN countries to scale up nutrition. The Global Networks form an integrated part of the SUN Movement, but for the sake of outcome monitoring are considered as separate actors from their country level representations given their distinct contributions to the Movement.
- 4.6.2 The progressive behaviour that is associated with the contribution of the global CSO, Donor, Business and UN Networks to the Movement is reflected in eight progress markers, illustrated in the spiral that keeps the four processes at country level together (see figure 3.3. below).

- 4.6.3 The same logic of non-linearity in the ladders of change at country level applies to the eight progress markers at global level. Additionally, for each of the four Networks details or signs have been identified, that may help in recognising what level of behaviour is manifested by a particular Network during a given period of time. These signs are reflected in the table below.

4.7 Lead Group outcomes

4.7.1 The role of the SUN Movement Lead Group can be summarised as follows:

- Provide leadership and strategic direction for the SUN Movement
- Advocate for SUN in their individual and collective spheres of influence
- Enable participating countries to access assistance needed to scale up nutrition
- Ensure the SUN Movement is equipped with adequate and predictable resources

4.7.2 To ascertain Mutual Accountability is practiced throughout the Movement, the extent to which the Lead Group plays its envisaged role will be subject to monitoring as well. For this purpose also for the Lead Group a string of progress markers of increasing levels of challenging behaviour is formulated as a basis for monitoring their contribution to the SUN Movement.

4.7.3 An initial list of Progress Markers has been developed, while exemplary signs that illustrate the level of progress achieved will be developed over time. The initial progress markers are as follows. The LG will:

- Set and protect strategic direction;
- Comment and consent on operationalisation of strategy;
- Advocate to keep nutrition high on international agenda along with the sustenance of the SUN Movement and its secretariat (i.e. mobilization of adequate and predictable resources);
- Use its individual and collective sphere of influence in pursuit / support of the objectives of the SUN Movement;
- Practice, oversee and encourage Mutual Accountability throughout the SUN Movement;
- Influence & build linkages among the different networks making up the SUN Movement.

5. Monitoring Outputs

- 5.1 The SUN Movement is served by the SUN Movement Secretariat (SMS) which delivers support services to the Movement as a whole. These services are considered as outputs and are tracked as routine monitoring data.
- 5.2 The output monitoring primarily serves the purpose of SMS accountability, through which the SMS can demonstrate the extent to which it lives up to its mandate and contractual commitments and its demonstrated ability to learn from experiences. For the output monitoring the logical framework approach using a more conventional system of Objectively Verifiable Indicators is used. This is because many of these indicators were already developed as part of the logframe that serves as funding basis for the SMS. These indicators have been reviewed and streamlined to the extent possible without jeopardising the contractual monitoring obligations of the SMS vis-à-vis its donors.
- 5.3 The routine monitoring data is about immediate consequences of implementing activities by SMS and is continuously generated as part of the on-going activities of the SMS.
- 5.4 The basis for the output monitoring is the Project Fiche, an accountability framework against which the Secretariat is required to report to its donors. The outputs are grouped in 3 categories as support services delivered to:
 1. Lead Group members
 2. SUN Countries and
 3. SUN Networks
- 5.5 Each output group is further detailed with specific services/activities and quantitative indicators that measure progress and accomplishment in delivering these services (for details refer to the table on the next page).

The output monitoring is operationalised by filling in a reporting matrix, which will provide the following information, per output:

Monitoring Outputs

Output	OVI, including target	Actual	Explanation of the variance	Suggestions for the next planning period both for outputs and activities
2.1. Support SUN countries to ensure they have timely access to the technical expertise they need	E.g. Country-Briefs made available at six-weekly intervals to all stakeholders in the SUN Movement	The actual # of briefs in the period of September 2012 – April 2013	Narrative to explain what are the reasons for over- or under-performance	E.g. add bi-monthly monitoring of aligned support behind country-led efforts by tracking number and type of requests that are followed up

6. Monitoring Plan of Outcomes

- 6.1 The monitoring plan is an essential part of putting the M&E Framework into practice and describes, per monitoring area (i.e. change in behaviour of a particular constituent group), the data the system will collect, and how the system will operate. The main elements of the Monitoring Plan are a) collection, b) mapping/analysis and c) collation and presentation of monitoring information that is captured by progress markers and indicators as described in the previous chapters. The main questions that the Monitoring Plan answers are i) how (i.e. by using of which tools and methods), ii) how often, iii) from where, and iv) by whom the data will be collected / analysed / translated into meaningful information for accountability, steering and learning of the SUN Movement.
- 6.2 The table below describes the main agreements for keeping M&E functioning. The following parts are distinguished:
- i. How, how often and from where will the data be collected?
 - ii. Which existing or new practices and documents/templates will be used for data collection?
 - iii. Under which existing or new function does responsibility for the data collection fall?
 - iv. Who will be responsible for contextualizing/explaining/interpreting the data, thus translating it into information?
 - v. Who will collate the reports for global networks? and
 - vi. Who will collate/make available reports for the whole Movement?
